CDCC:

The Caribbean Development Committee (CDCC), is a permanent subsidiary of the United Nations Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean (ECLAC) Subregional Headquarters for the Caribbean. It comprises the 16 Caribbean member and associate member countries of the Commission. ECLAC's Subregional Office for the Caribbean provides the Secretariat for the CDCC.

The ECLAC/CDCC Secretariat works closely with other regional organizations, the United Nations System of Agencies, bilateral and multilateral donors and the Non-Governmental Organizations (NGOs). This facilitates the Secretariat's functions in support of the regional mechanisms for cooperation and the implementation of programmes for collective action geared to the benefit of its member countries.

PREFACE

This Digest of Selected Social and Demographic Indicators for CDCC Member Countries, 1960–1995 represents an update of an earlier document – Regional Digest of Selected Demographic and Social Indicators – published in 1991.

A principal motivating factor for this second volume has been the need to understand the complex social and economic implications of population dynamics. The current issue, therefore, brings together a wide range of social, economic and demographic data with a view to promoting understanding of the nature of these linkages and encouraging the integration of population in development planning. In this regard, population-related socio-economic information, including employment, household aspects, education and health, is combined with data on the demographic characteristics and behaviour of the population subgroups – children, youth, working age group and the elderly.

The primary sources of material are the 1960–1990/91 censuses and the national statistical reports.

Responsibility for this publication rests with the Demography Unit of the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean (ECLAC), Subregional Headquarters for the Caribbean, Port of Spain. The revision was facilitated to a great extent, however, by the close collaboration between ECLAC's Demography Unit and the National Population Units, Planning Ministries, Statistical Offices and Family Planning Associations in the Caribbean.

We therefore trust that this second issue will attract the interest of a wide cross-section of international organizations, research and training institutions and other bodies dealing with questions related to population and development in the Caribbean. It is our hope that governments will find the information provided of some assistance in their population and development programme formulation, implementation and planning exercises.

Finally, the assistance of the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) in providing funding for this publication, through the UNFPA/ECLAC subregional project "Integrating Population in Development Planning for the Caribbean", is gratefully acknowledged.

(a) For Antigua and Barbuda, the Bahamas and Dominica the sum of the number of males and females does not always agree with the total number given for both sexes, due to the fact that in some instances, notification of sex at birth was not given at the time of registration.

(b) 1971 data (c) 1964 data (d) The figures for the years 1885-1987 refer to the occurrence of births in the specific years. For all others, the figures depict registration of births in each year, regardless of the date of occurrence. (e) These figures exclude births which took place outside of the country. These births may account for significant proportions of the total number of births. (f) Except for the year 1970, all other years depict data by year of occurrence.

(a) For Antigua and Barbuda, the Bahamas and Dominica, the sum of the number of males and females does not always agree with the total number given for both sexes, due to the fact that in some instances, no indication of sex was given at the time of registration. (b) 1971 data. (c) 1969. (d) The figures for the years 1982-1984 refer to the occurrence of deaths for the specific year. For all other years, the figures depict registration of deaths in each year, regardless of the date of occurrence. (e) These figures exclude deaths which take place outside of the country. This can account for a significant proportion of the total number of deaths.
